MANY OFFICES TO BE FILLED IN NOVEMBER

Twelve county offices, one state and a number of borough and township offices will be filled by the county voters this fall.

At the primaries, September 9, the Democrats and Republicans each will nominate one judge of the superior court to fill a state post made vacant by a resignation. The office will be the only state position filled this year.

In the county each party will name a sheriff, district attorney, prothonotary, register and recorder, two county commissioners, two county auditors, a coroner and a county surveyor. From those nominations one will be elected to each office with the exception of the commissioners and auditors where the three high men will be elected among the four nominees.

Many Local Offices

The two parties in each township and borough will nominate an auditor for six years, a school director for six years and in each precinct a judge of elections and an inspector of elections. In Gettysburg, however, three school directors will be named.

Each township will nominate a supervisor for six years.

Other nominations will include in the various communities: Abbotstown, four councilmen; Arendtsville, four councilmen; Bendersville, three councilmen; Biglerville, four councilmen; East Berlin, four councilmen; Fairfield, three councilmen; Gettysburg, first ward, two councilmen; Gettysburg, second ward, two councilmen; Gettysburg, third ward, two councilmen; Littlestown, first ward, one councilman; Littlestown, second ward, two councilmen; McSherrystown, first ward, two councilmen; McSherrystown, second ward, one councilman; New Oxford, (Please Turn to Page 7)

HISTORIC BRIDGE MAY BE RAZED

The historic stone arch bridge over Marsh creek at the former Black Horse tavern on the Fairfield road again is in danger of being razed to make way for a new, modern concrete and steel span.

The state Highway department on Monday asked for bids for the construction of 1.17 miles of bituminous pavement in Highland and Cumberland townships and for the construction of a concrete deck I-beam bridge over Marsh creek between Gettysburg and Fairfield on Route 116.

Several years ago when the state contemplated removal of the old stone arch span, the Adams County Historical society passed resolutions opposing its removal declaring the bridge, which is more than a century old, is an historic landmark and should be preserved.

Inquiry last week at Harrisburg by Assemblyman Francis Worley, at the request of a member of the historical society, brought from a Highway department official the statement that it had not then been determined finally whether the old bridge will have to be taken down.

Mr. Worley was told that while the new bridge probably will not be built at the present location of the stone span, the old bridge may have to be removed to make way for approaches to the new structure.

The bids are to be opened July 3.

The club voted to contribute to the Gettysburg fire company bazaar. The amount of the donation will be recommended later by the finance committee.

Will Confer With Dauphin Officials

Arrangements have been completed for the Adams county commissioners to meet with the Dauphin county commissioners and prison board at Harrisburg Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Commissioners' Clerk Clarence C. Smith announced today.

The county officials will leave their office here at 10 o'clock Wednesday for the meeting at which they hope to complete arrangements for placing the county's prisoners in the Dauphin county prison for the period of time necessary to build a new jail here. The prisoners must be moved from the present county jail. The commissioners decided several weeks ago because the jail has been condemned by the state Department of Welfare and the state Department of Labor and Industry.

CHINESE ART IS TOPIC FOR ROTARY CLUB

The patience and skill of the Chinese artisan were extolled Monday evening by Dr. Frank Kramer in a description of Chinese art objects given to the local Rotary club at its regular meeting at the YWCA.

The Chinese value jade very highly, more highly than so-called precious stones. Doctor Kramer said. They "like the feel of it" and also "believe it to have certain curative and preventative qualities."

The Gettysburg college professor added. A Chinese artist is as "careful to do a good job where it does not show as he is where it does show," he added. Describing the work of the Chinese artists in the interior who make the jade and other semi-precious stone plates, designs and statues that represent some of the best work in Chinese art, Doctor Kramer pointed out that "sometimes they will work as long as 10 years to turn out a single plate."

When an artist secures a piece of jade or other stone he will spend a day, or perhaps weeks or months looking at the stone until he has discovered how best to use the stone. We think of jade as one color. Actually it occurs in every color of the rainbow and usually the colors are blended through a single piece of jade."

The speaker was introduced by Dr. C. Harold Johnson. The president, Dr. Chester N. Gitt, presided at the meeting with 50 members present.

O. H. Benson, chairman of the Youth committee, urged all members to publicize the baseball-school to be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the college diamond by the St. Louis Cardinals under sponsorship of the Rotary club.

REFORMEDS ASK $25,000 FUND

Gettysburg's Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church is seeking to raise $25,000 as a building fund during the next few weeks, its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Fox, announced today.

The drive was opened Sunday and will continue through the next two weeks, ending the last Sunday of the month. Thirty-two solicitors are visiting the members of the church to obtain from them cash or pledges toward the goal sought.

The drive is actually for $20,000, the Rev. Dr. Fox explained, with $5,000 already in the building fund of the church.

With the money the church plans to construct a two-story 50 by 35 brick addition to the rear of the church and to make other changes and renovations to the church proper. The new annex will be used as an educational building by the Sunday schools.

Present plans call for construction to begin "as soon as possible" the Rev. Dr. Fox said.

New Members Are Admitted To Church

At the communion services at St. James Lutheran church Sunday new members were received by letter of transfer and confirmation. Those who were received by letter of transfer included Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Little and Mrs. Ray Gann. Ray Gann was received by confirmation.

At the service of baptism which was conducted Sunday afternoon the following children were baptized: Stephen Dickert Conway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conway; Michael Richard Orth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Orth; Gary Lee Spence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Spence; Donna Rae Redding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Redding; Richard Alan Finkboner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Finkboner; Lois Marie Zimmerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet L. Zimmerman.

Flag Day Is Observed With Parade And Exercises In Square; Pageant Of Flags Is Colorful Event; State Guard Transfers Colors To National Guard

America need have no fear of Communism if Americans put their faith in the flag, the sovereignty of 140,000,000 people, and follow the integrity, dignity and religious culture which thousands have fought for in all the wars of this nation, Judge J. Paul Rupp of the Dauphin Court of Common Pleas declared in a Flag Day address Monday evening from the balcony of the Hotel Gettysburg.

His talk was a part of one of the most colorful observances of Flag Day ever held in Gettysburg, which featured a parade from the Meade school to Center Square, the Elks Pageant of Flags ritual, presentation of the Elks Memorial Flag to the new Dorsey-Stanton post of the American Legion, and the transfer of the State Guard colors to the new local troop of the National Guard.

Lincoln Loyal To Flag

"You folks who live here do not place the prominence on Gettysburg that we who live away from here do," Judge Rupp declared. He referred to the death of George W. Krug, last surviving Adams county veteran of the Civil War, and said that "we are today the same distance from the Civil War, that Lincoln was from the beginning of this country."

"Lincoln showed in every thought and every word and deed what the flag meant to him. I wonder what it means to us? The flag means whatever we make it mean. The flag is what we are. All who fought and strove for the preservation of its integrity had their views of what the flag meant to them. They all thought of the dignity, the sovereignty and the integrity of the flag. "To be a sovereign nation, the individual had to participate in the government. This nation had to be a Christian nation. Those who fought here thought only of their own soil. Today we have men here with us who followed the flag on soils all over the world."

Worley Opposes Bill On 'Pike Extension

Assemblyman Francis Worley, Adams county's representative in the General Assembly, on Saturday voted against another turnpike bill that previously had passed the Senate and was approved by the House Saturday by a vote of 202 to 2.

"I know Gettysburg and Adams county are opposed to toll roads and I voted against the bill. I want to see more roads built in rural sections of the state and roads already there repaired before spending money for more roads which do not benefit the people of my county," Mr. Worley said.

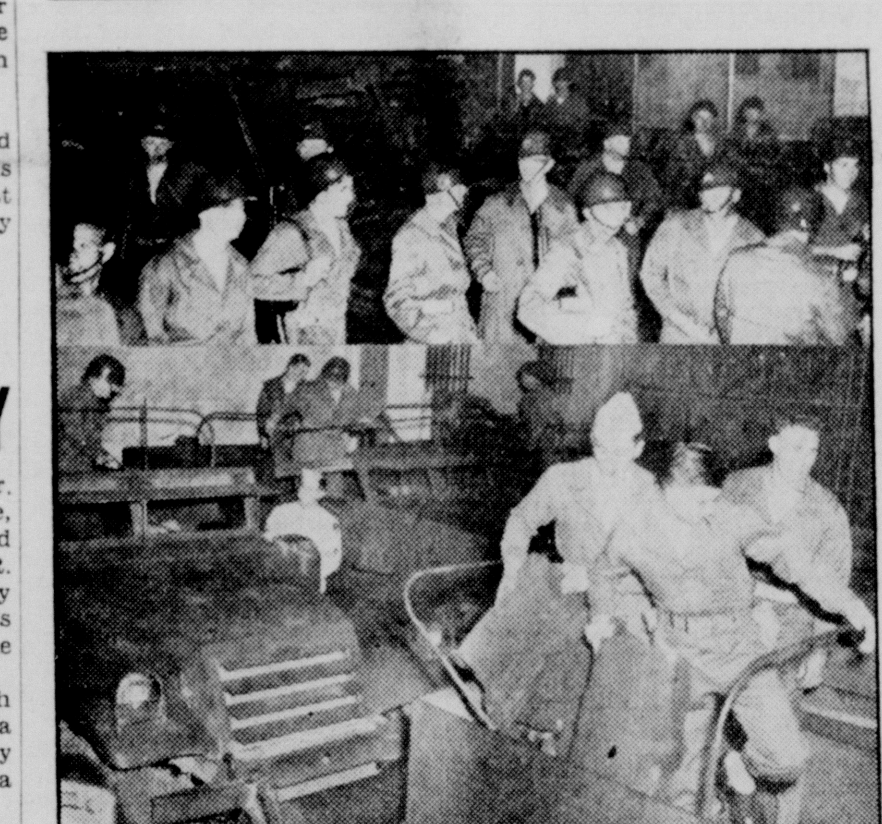

The bill passed Saturday was Senate Bill No. 868 which allows Pennsylvania to act with Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana in forming an Inter-State Turnpike commission for the extension of the present superhighway.

House Fails To Override Tax Bill Veto On First Attempt

Washington, June 17 (P) — House Republicans fell two votes short today on their first attempt to pass the $4,000,000,000 tax reduction bill over President Truman's veto and promptly demanded a recount.

The vote was announced as 268 for overriding the veto and 137 against. It requires a two-thirds majority to pass a bill over the President's disapproval.

GOP leaders hoped the recount—a second call of the roll—might bring a shift of two votes. Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana requested and obtained the recount.

His aides were busy talking with members privately on the floor. Before the vote, Speaker Martin had declared that if the Senate or House upheld the veto it would mean no new attempt this year to reduce taxes.

The Massachusetts legislator made the statement to reporters as the

PUPIL REPORT CARD RATINGS ARE DISCUSSED

Parents who are not satisfied with little children's report cards are in good company — the school principals and superintendents also are not satisfied.

However, that conclusion, reached by the schoolmen of Adams, Franklin and York counties at their annual summer conference here showed the school heads to be dissatisfied with the report cards for a different reason than the one usually privately held by parents.

Monday afternoon's session of the three-day meeting of schoolmen being held at Gettysburg college brought a diversity of opinion from the various school administrators on the lowly report card.

All seemed agreed that a report card which lists the courses and then notifies the parents that their child received an "A" in spelling a "B" in reading and an "F" in arithmetic means little.

Where they could not agree was on what should replace the traditional report card.

Favor Personal Letters

Some held for personal letters to the parents, pointing out that each child is a problem in himself, completely different from any other child. They pointed out that a student getting all "A" markings might be doing less work and himself less good than a student getting all "D" marks.

One schoolman wanted to know "what are we marking? How sharp the student's tools are or how he is using them?"

Others held for report cards similar to those used by the Biglerville school system which breaks down the studies into a number of traits and divisions and reports on each one individually so that parents might know their daughter does very well in spelling tests but does not spell properly when she hands in papers on other subjects.

Referendum On DST Dies In Senate

Given a momentary new lease on life by a delay in final adjournment, a proposal for a statewide referendum next fall on the question of daylight saving died in the Senate over the week-end, an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg said Monday.

Passed by the House despite opposition from city lawmakers, the measure was reported favorably by the Senate state government committee weeks ago but never was brought to a vote.

Introduced by Rep. Francis Worley (R-Adams) the measure would have required the governor to proclaim standard or daylight saving throughout the state following the vote.

APPLE TAX PLAN IS DEFEATED IN STATE SENATE

Legislation to impose a tax of one cent a bushel on apples to finance a sales promotion campaign was rejected Monday night by the state senate, according to an Associated Press dispatch today from Harrisburg.

The measure would have set up a state apple board in the Department of Agriculture to administer the money. The bill passed the House in April under the sponsorship of George Goodling, York Republican, an apple grower.

The governor appointed members of the state apple board, from a list submitted by the State Horticultural association, of which Frederic E. Griest, Florida Dale, is president.

Backed By State Fruitmen

The bill was one of the first of the new tax proposals to be submitted to the 1947 legislature. It was supported by the State Horticultural association, which called for such a measure at its annual meeting in January, at the State Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Under the bill, proponents expected to raise approximately $100,000 a year to be used by the board for advertising and research purposes to promote the sale of Pennsylvania apples and to increase their quality.

Under a provision of the measure, revenue from the apple tax would have been funneled exclusively to the board for "scientific research to develop and discover the health food, therapeutic and dietetic value of apples and products thereof."

Opposed By Dent

Additionally, certain of the funds would have been earmarked "to plan and conduct campaigns of education, advertising, publicity, sales promotion and research for the purpose of increasing the demand for the consumption of Pennsylvania apples."

Senator John H. Dent, Democratic floor leader, said approval of the bill would lead to similar legislation for other products. In leading the opposition to its passage, Dent said "it will lead to commissions for the sale of tomatoes, squash and other things."

Here And There News Collected At Random

Gettysburg had another full taste of a first-class flood in the main streets of town last Friday and Saturday evenings when most of the crossings were inundated, because of the lack of catch basins.

In many places in town water flooded over the crown of the road. Gutters overflowed onto the sidewalks and many pedestrians were well splashed when cars wheeled through the deep water sending it several feet across the sidewalks.

Many women removed their shoes to walk across the crossings, wading through water six and eight inches deep.

Mrs. Fred W. Bankert, of near Abbotstown, traded a box top and a jingle for a $10 cash prize in a recent nation-wide jingle contest. 999 other women in the country received similar prizes.

LEGISLATURE AGREES ON TAX POWER ISSUE

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—Removing a major stumbling block in the path of adjournment, House-Senate conferees settled differences today on an administration key measure—a proposal to broaden the tax-powers of local municipalities.

The action was taken shortly after the weary lawmakers, renewed efforts to wind up the 1947 session, now in its sixth month. Final adjournment plans for Saturday and last night both bogged down in a crush of last minute work.

Both House and Senate set an unprecedented 8 a. m. (EST) to start the day's work but both branches were late in getting under way.

Revise Tax Bill

The local taxation bill, urged by Gov. James H. Duff to augment local revenues to aid local school districts and other taxing bodies, was revised in conference to restore coal and other natural resources as subjects of new local levies.

Another Senate amendment to exclude first class townships from provisions of bill was also deleted but the House conferees went along on other upper chamber revisions, including one to provide for court appeals.

The conference report, awaiting printing, is expected to be acted upon finally in the closing hours of the session tonight.

Teacher Pay Delayed

Sen. O. J. Tallman, GOP leader in the upper branch, who also opposed the natural resource amendment when it was offered by Sen. John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) minority leader, also stated "that must come out."

Meanwhile, the House held up final action on the teacher pay measure already approved in its final form by the Senate 47-3.

The bill sets up a new mandated pay range from $1,950 to $3,400 with a $4,000 top in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. The present range is $1,400 to $2,700 outside those major cities. The measure, which kept within the $48,000,000 increase set by Governor Duff, also boosts subsidies from the present $600-$1,800 range to $700-$2,200.

Weddings

Waters-Berkheimer

The Harris Street Evangelical United Brethren church, Harrisburg, was the scene of a colorful June wedding Saturday, June 14, at 4 o'clock, when Miss Nancy Marion Berkheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Berkheimer, 51 West Stevens street, Gettysburg, became the bride of Richard Alan Waters, son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Waters, Harrisburg.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Forrest J. Rehrg, performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives of the couple. A half-hour organ recital by Mrs. Jonas Cassell preceded the ceremony. Miss Shirley Waters, a sister of the bridegroom, sang "Because." "I Love You Truly," and "O Promise Me." The traditional wedding marches were played by Mrs. Cassell.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a bridal gown of white lace, with full skirt ending in a long train. Her tulle veil was trimmed with pearl orange blossoms, and her colonial effect bouquet was edged in lace, and held a center of gardenias. Rosebuds and lilies of the valley surrounded the centerpiece. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Attended By Sister

Miss Berkheimer was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Berkheimer, of Baltimore, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Alice Jean Waters, a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Joan Pollock, Harrisburg. Robert Biting, Marysville, was the best man and ushers were Richard Botts, Harrisburg, and Edward Baum, Danville, Va.

The maid of honor carried pink roses to match a lace and marquisette dress, with headpiece of pink flower petals. Miss Alice Jean Waters carried talisman roses, contrasting with an aqua dress of lace and marquisette. Miss Pollock carried yellow roses to match a yellow dress of lace and marquisette. The bride's mother wore a print dress of gray, black and yellow, with white accessories and a corsage of daisies and iris. The groom's mother was attired in rose, with white accessories and a corsage of spring flowers.

The church altar was decorated with palms and baskets of white flowers, and was also graced with candles set in wrought iron candelabra.

Reception Held

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Civic club, Harrisburg, for members of the families, the wedding party and approximately 75 guests from Gettysburg, Harrisburg, Shamokin, Mechanicsburg, Williamsport, Carlisle, New Castle, Trevorton and Bangor, Pa.

The couple left on a wedding trip, from the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Berkheimer, Harrisburg. Their destination was not announced. Upon their return they will reside temporarily in an apartment in Palmyra.

For her going-away costume Mrs. Waters wore an aqua suit, with gray lizard shoes and hand-bag, a white hat and a gardenia corsage. She is a graduate of Gettysburg high school, class of 1945, and has been employed as a service representative in the business office of the Bell Telephone company, Harrisburg. RENEW APPEAL ON CHINA RELIEF

A total of $204.05 has been collected in Adams county for United Services to China. Mrs. George R. Larkin, North Stratton street, treasurer for the county committee, reported today.

The Rev. George S. Stoneback, Fairfield, chairman of the county committee, announced that the drive was continuing with the hope that additional sums could be collected. "Ten dollars will provide sufficient vitamin tablets for 25 Chinese youngsters for one year, $25 will maintain one Chinese nurse in school for one year; $50 will provide bone-building milk for one year for 25 Chinese youngsters, and $180 will take care of a Chinese orphan for one year. The amount donated by the county so far is almost enough to buy one set of basic surgical instruments to be used by a Chinese doctor. The people of China are desperately poor and we must help them to help themselves. They cannot do it alone—they need our help. And we need a strong, prosperous China for the good of the world in addition to doing our Christian duty of feeding the hungry, clothing the naked and housing the homeless."

Largest donation was $100 from the Orntanna Canning company. A total of $33.77 was raised at the public meeting held two weeks ago. The New Oxford schools gave $15 and $10 each were given by Dr. and Mrs. Frank Kramer, Roy P. Funkhouser, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Larkin. ENOS AND LOU LEAD SLUGGERS

New York, June 17 (AP)—Outfielder Enos Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals and playing manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians were the respective batting leaders of the National and American leagues today.

Slaughter, undisturbed by the second division playing of the St. Louis Cardinals, through games of Sunday, June 15, topped both leagues with a mark of .359. Boudreau's average was .350.

Sidelined for a few days as a result of a home plate collision with Walker Cooper of the New York Giants, Slaughter resumed his heavy slugging to overtake Harry Walker of the Philadelphia Phillies, who dropped to second place with .356. Carl Furillo, part-time Brooklyn outfielder, got into enough games during the past week to take over third place in the National league with .430. Bert Haas of Cincinnati fell from third to fourth with .333 nine points above fifth place Bob Elliott of Boston.

Boudreau Falls Off
Boudreau actually backed into the American league lead, dropping six points from his .356 of last week. However, Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees, who shared the lead with him last week, skidded 23 points to a fifth place .333. George McQuinn of the Yankees boosted his mark 14 points to claim second place with a .348 average. Stan Spence of Washington was third with .341 and George Kell of Detroit fourth with .337.

Scranton Pitcher Hurls One-Hitter

(By The Associated Press)
Southpaw Bill Kennedy turned in a one-hit performance in his initial appearance of the season last night as Scranton whitewashed Binghamton, 7-0, in the first game of a doubleheader.

Scranton proceeded to blank Binghamton again in the second tilt, 1-0, scoring the lone tally on an error in the ninth inning with two out. Jim McDonald rationed Binghamton to four safe blows.

Utica extended its loop by fashioning an 8-2 win over second-place Wilkes-Barre.

Albany moved into a tie for fifth place by sweeping a double-header from Williamsport, 5-2 and 8-7, and Elmira grabbed both ends of a twin bill for Hartford, 5-1 and 6-5.

Utica's triumph was its 18th in the last 20 starts and the third in a row over Wilkes-Barre.

Albany won the first game behind three-hit pitching of righthander Russ Needham but had to come from behind to take the second in 11 innings.

MAJOR LEAGUES ATTENDANCE IS EVEN WITH '46

By JOE REICHLER
(AP Sports Writer)

Those who have been predicting that major league baseball attendance never again would approach the altitudinous figures reached last season may be forced to eat their words.

Weather has forced a near-record number of postponements but big league attendance is running almost even with last year's record figures, and with the prospect of a neck and neck race right down to the wire in both leagues, a new mark may be set. In 1946, a total of 18,612,704 fans paid to watch major league baseball.

Including games played last night, the two leagues have drawn a total of 6,798,795 fans, only 101,650 cash customers behind the corresponding period a year ago on games through June 16. However, they have utilized only 355 playing dates as compared to 363 playing dates last year.

Many Postponements
Having been hurt more than the senior loop in the matter of postponements, the American league shows a corresponding decrease from last year.

The National league shows an increase with 3,503,397 fans for 181 playing dates as against 3,027,485 for 173 engagements in 1946.

National league clubs showing increases are New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

In the American league, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit show increases.

A night game Yankee Stadium crowd of 52,633 fans saw their favorites trail for seven innings, then come through with two runs in the eighth and one in the ninth to give the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox. The triumph increased the Yankees' first place lead in the American league to a game and a half over Detroit and Boston, deadlocked for second place.

Dodgers Beat Cubs
In the ninth, Joe DiMaggio led off with a double, was sacrificed to third and scored the winning run on a perfectly executed squeeze bunt by Phil Rizzuto.

With 20,097 looking on in Chicago, the Brooklyn Dodgers, taking advantage of two errors by First Baseman Ed Waitkus, scored two unearned runs to eke out a 2-1 decision over the Cubs. The defeat dropped the third-place Cubs one full game off the pace. The fourth-place Dodgers closed the gap between themselves and front-running Boston to two and a half games.

In the only other game played in the majors, the rejuvenated St. Louis Cardinals eked out a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in St. Louis, scoring the winning run in the 10th inning after the Phils had tied the score in the ninth.

A single by Red Schoendienst and an error by Right Fielder Johnny Wyrostek on Terry Moore's single enabled Schoendienst to score all the way from first.

Says Wrestling Gains In Interest

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—Basketball is the most popular game in Pennsylvania's public schools "both from the standpoint of student-player participation and spectator interest," Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction, said today.

The education official at the same time said football is in second place with baseball third and track fourth.

"Wrestling is gaining a tremendous following and can probably be classed as fifth in interest among boys," he added. "In some areas, hockey is popular with the girls."

Allentown Takes 2 Games From York

PHILLIES SIGN CURT SIMMONS, WHITEHALL ACE

Philadelphia, June 17 (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies had landed Curt Simmons today after what was possibly the most vigorous major league bidding campaign since the war.

This Simmons fellow is a lean 18-year-old southpaw who stands six foot one and who pitched until June 6 for Whitehall, Pa., high school, where he ran up one of the most impressive pitching and batting records in schoolboy annals.

Neither General Manager Herb Pennock nor President Bob Carpenter, who signed Simmons yesterday and shipped him to the Phils' Wilmington (Del.) farm in the Class B Interstate league, would disclose how much Simmons received for signing.

But Carpenter said it was "a considerable sum" and Pennock amended "it was one of the best contracts I ever saw."

Said Simmons: "It's wonderful."

Wanted By Other Clubs

The Phils' bidding victory was scored over nine other major league clubs, the American league Detroit, Cleveland, New York, Boston and Philadelphia teams, and the National league St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and New York entries.

It was reported that Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, had offered as much as $25,000 for Curt's signature after Simmons struck out 11 Phillies in an exhibition game that ended 4-4 several weeks ago.

In three seasons of pitching for Whitehall high, Simmons lost only two games. He pitched two no hits this season and in one game struck out 23 batters.

Simmons filled in at first base when he wasn't pitching and batted a neat 400.

All-American Boy

Curt also was selected the All-American boy after he starred in the 1945 All-Star American Legion baseball game at New York.

Pennock said he was particularly pleased with the way Simmons worked against his Phils in that exhibition game. The youth made up his own private book on how to pitch to fellows like Del Ennis, Jim Tabor and Andy Seminick while watching batting practice.

"That kind of observation from a kid who never pitched in better than high school and sandlot ball is what sold me," said Pennock.

After signing his contract, Curt was asked if he had anything to say. "Yep," he replied, "Don't forget to get me some good bats."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Portsmouth, Va., June 17 (AP)—Favorite topic of conversation in this part of the country today is what happened to Sammy Sneed on the 72nd hole at St. Louis and is Sammy getting temperamental. . . . Lew Worsham is a Virginia boy, too, but that fact is recognized only casually since he has spent more time around Washington, D. C. . . .

BAIT FOR TOMMY

Frank Lawrence, Portsmouth Cubs boss who was honored yesterday on the anniversary of his 40 years in banking and baseball, says he got into the latter business because he could earn $5 a week when the local newspaper wouldn't raise him from the $3.50 weekly he was getting as a sportswriter. . . . Lou should hear the needling job the toastmaster, Tommy Richardson, eastern league president, did with those figures. . . .

A LEAGUE WAS BORN

Smoke Screen Ernie (Duke) Landgraf, who has operated in almost every city in minor league baseball including a lot that aren't in any kind of baseball, now tells this yarn about the organization of the federal league. . . . Landgraf, now president of the Class D North Atlantic loop, was one of the original organizers of the famous outlaw circuit. . . . The first meeting, he says, was attended only by three men but a dozen big time sportswriters were looking for the big story that had been promised. When the reporters became impatient, Landgraf phoned the hotel desk to send up a few pitchers of beer, a lot of glasses and some cigars. The glasses were filled and emptied and scattered around, the three organizers smoked furiously, and when the scribes finally were admitted he pointed to the evidence and explained: "We had a big meeting, lot of millionaires here, but they slipped out the back door. They didn't want to be identified." Later the wealthy men were enlisted and Ernie claims the league still would be operating if World War One hadn't intervened.

to be gone from Allentown, chopped down the cellar-dwelling Sunbury Yankees 8 to 4 to move to within four games of second place Harrisburg, which was idle in loop play but dropped a 12-3 exhibition contest to the parent Cleveland Indians. In the only other game played, the skidding Lancaster Red Roses dropped to within one game of the basement as the Hagerstown Owls advanced into the first division with a 13-2 victory.

Elliott Leading Whitey Kurowski

Chicago, June 17 (AP)—Bob Elliott of Boston today went back into the leadership in the poll for third baseman on the National league all-star team. George "Whitey" Kurowski, of St. Louis, had passed Elliott Sunday, but was unable to maintain his slim margin.

Elliott had 39,418 votes in the latest tabulation, to 36,672 for Kurowski. Frankie Gustine of Pittsburgh was in third place with 27,143 and Stanley Hack of Chicago fourth with 23,807.

Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox left fielder, was the top vote-getter in either league, with 74,854 votes. Joe DiMaggio was a close second. The New York Yankees centerfielder had 72,387 votes.

Each league squad will be composed of 25 players, and at least one player from each will be on the squad. The managers will name their own pitchers and no pitcher will be permitted to work more than three innings.

WOMEN TO PLAY SOFTBALL TILTS IN NEW LEAGUE

A new Gettysburg softball league, which will feature five women's teams and one men's team, is in process of formation, and one game has already been arranged. On Wednesday night at 6:30 o'clock on Corridor Field, the "Old Timers," the men's team, will play a team of women from the Keystone Garment company.

Borough Police Officer Charles C. Culp, Jr., is in charge of the Old Timers, and is organizing the league. Charles Ditzler is manager of the Keystone team. Other teams at present lined up, and their managers, are:

Gettysburg Throwing company, Robert Berkheimer; Junior Police Girls' team, Jean Williams; Standard Garment company, Mrs. Stanley Sprinkle, and High School Alumni team, Barbara Oyer.

The Old Timers is strictly a veteran organization, according to Manager Culp, and these battle-scarred "has-beens" must be at least 45 years old to be eligible to play with the team, he said.

He listed the following prospects for the team: Francis Stevens, John Goodermuth, Steve Smith, Charles Zhea, Emory Strausbaugh, Charles Evans, "Runt" Murray, "Spike" Oyer, Dorsey Rebert, John Anzures, Howard Hartzell, Cyril Staub, Lloyd Palmer, Arthur Roth, "Chuck" Mayhall, Russell Staley, Lawrence Oyer and Pat Warren. Ralph Johnson will probably be the umpire.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock the Gettysburg Junior Police team will play a regularly scheduled league game with the Chambersburg Junior Police at College field.

Mexico City, June 17 (AP)—Max Lanier, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, arrived here last night to rejoin the Mexican baseball league. Lanier reportedly latched up his differences over salary with League Boss Jorge Pasquel. Lanier will report to the Veracruz Blues Thursday.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Local Miscellany: James C. Taylor, of Straban township, has secured a position as assistant in the State Insane hospital, at Trenton, N. J.

Gettysburg can now boast of some of the smallest bicyclists in the country.

Gettysburg is also up to date in the number of scorchers whose reckless riding is dangerous to pedestrians, especially at night.

The number of ponies in town seems to be increasing to the great joy of the young folks, as quite a cavalcade can now be mustered for an evening's ride. The diminutive cart and pair of ponies is quite a familiar object on the street.

The button hole bouquet seems to be growing largely in favor, even the gorgeous peony is utilized by some persons.

C. J. Tyson gave all his employees from Flora Dale a trip over the Battlefield and entertained them at the Eagle Hotel.

Forty bicyclists from Waynesboro arrived Tuesday morning on the train to take in the Battlefield. They took dinner and supper at Hotel Gettysburg.

Children's Day exercises were held in the several churches on Sunday.

Exercises of Bethany School: The closing exercises of the Bethany School were held at the school rooms in the Crawford building on Friday morning, June 11. A number of patrons and friends of the school were present for the exercises.

A "Visit from the Birds," was quaintly rendered by Rachel Skelly, Louise Duncan, Janie Quimby, Ruth Hamilton, Helen Culp, John Blocher, Roger Musselman, Edgar Faber and Harry Lockner. "How the Peabody Bird Got Its Name" was read by Frances McClean, and "An Order for a Picture" by Morris Weaver. Rachel Skelly recited "Six Times Nine" in an amusing way, and "Robert of Lincoln" was well given by Nellie Weaver. Ruth Stine read an essay on the subject of "Flowers." A reward in the form of a pretty book was given for good attendance to one of the little girls.

Wedding Bells: None but relatives and immediate friends were present at the wedding of Miss Lula Kitzmiller, daughter of the late J. A. Kitzmiller, Esq., and Mr. Robert C. Miller on Tuesday evening. The ceremony was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride. Rev. E. Breidenbaugh officiated. Miss May Garlach was bridesmaid and Mr. Edward Pfeiffer, best man.

Marriages: Bream—Miller: June 10, at Bragtown, by Rev. J. W. Reese. Harvey C. Bream, to Miss Ella Miller, both of Latimore township.

Deardorf—Cline: June 13, at York Springs, by Emmanuel W. Monner, Charles E. Deardorf, of Tyro township, to Miss Elsie M. Cline, of Huntington township.

Delap—Lishy: June 17, near Heidelberg, by Rev. Emmanuel W. Wonnor, Ambrose A. Delap, of Tyro township, to Miss Sue L. Lishy, of Huntington township.

Meeting of School Board: The Gettysburg School Board met and organized on Thursday evening and elected the following officers, teachers and janitors:

President, Chas. M. McCurdy; secretary, Chas. H. Ruff, and treasurer, Edw. M. Bender.

Teachers Elected
High school, J. Dorsey Hunter; assistant teacher in high school, Miss Helen L. Cope; A grammar school, Miss Anna M. Hake; B grammar school, Miss Hattie B. McGrew; C grammar school, Miss Lizzie C. PEARL RIVERS—PUBLISHER

Some 15 years ago there was a memorial dedicated to Pearl Rivers, in City Park, New Orleans, as a tribute to a beloved woman and poet. A much more significant memorial could well be dedicated to this woman, however, who was the first woman to become the publisher of a daily newspaper of metropolitan grade in America!

This newspaper was the "New Orleans Picayune" now the (Times-Picayune) and during the period covering the years from 1876-1896 Eliza Jane Nicholson initiated ideas and policies that have eventually spread to all newspapers. As Pearl Rivers, she began writing poetry at the age of 14 and a volume of her poetry was once presented to me by her son, Leonard K. Nicholson, now publisher of the Times-Picayune—one of America's great newspapers.

Things were not so rosy, however, when upon the death of her first husband, this courageous woman took charge. The paper was in a bad way, owing some $80,000. The war between the States had left scars upon New Orleans and the South. A woman in business was looked upon as just not the proper thing! But Pearl Rivers invited respect—and got it. She welcomed women on the paper, and their contributions. One—Mrs. Elizabeth M. Gilmer (Dorothy Dix) has continued to this day, and is a stockholder.

Pearl Rivers started in at once to make the Picayune a family newspaper in name and substance. She centered her attention upon the Sunday issue, introducing special departments such as society, the theatre, and special correspondence and features appealing primarily to women and the home. She was fearless in her editorial policy and believed that a newspaper should be the servant of the people, and benefit all readers, rich or poor. That policy has continued to this day under the wise guidance of her son and his staff.

This pioneer woman publisher did a job under which many a man might have wilted. It took life even out of such a courageous body, and at the early age of but 47 she was taken from all activity. I quote from a tribute given at the death of this noble woman. It appeared in the February 16, 1896, Picayune concerning her obituary, as follows:

"There was one woman who sought no notoriety, occupied no public place, performed no official function, but in her private capacity as the owner and director of a great newspaper, impressed her mind, her character and her individuality, on more people than did any other woman in the United States."

Pearl Rivers was the Commodore Perry of her day, opening up to all women the great opportunities in business and journalism that are so widespread—and justly so—today. Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Sustaining Power."

FOREST AND FIRE

A forest is a lovely thing,
The gift of nature unto man;
Within its depths the song birds sing;
Its paths great leafy archways span.
And there it is God's creatures dwell,
And there are fruit and flower and fern.
But grim the narratives they tell
Who once have seen a forest burn.

A forest is a treasure store

Where man for peace and wealth may go.

And yet, in all our woodland lore,
Man is the forest's fiercest foe.

He loves it! Loves the pine and elm!
Yet in his fire he leaves a spark

That starts a flame that will o'erwhelm

All living things with fury stark.

Man in a careless mood will throw

His lighted cigarette away,
And heedless on his way will go,
And fire will rage by night and day.

Great trees will fall and creatures die,
Till all lies desolate and bare.

Oh, forests! God must wonder why
Man gives to you so little care.

SAYS UNIVERSAL TRAINING NOW U.S. NECESSITY

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

Princeton, N. J., June 17 (AP)—President Truman said today this country's pledge to help free nations resist the "encroachment of totalitarian pressures" makes universal training a "military necessity."

"We must remember above all," the Chief Executive asserted, "that these men would not be traiping in order to win a war, but in order to prevent one."

The President came here by special train from Washington to receive his tenth honorary doctor of laws degree at a Princeton university bi-centennial convocation in which similar honors were bestowed on 36 other outstanding leaders.

Weakness And Fear

"Peace-loving nations," Mr. Truman said in his prepared address, "can make only slow progress toward the attainment of a stable world—in which all peoples are free to work out their own destinies in their own way—unless their moral leadership is supported by strength."

"Weakness on our part would stir fear among small or weakened nations that we were giving up our world leadership. It would seem to them that we lacked the will to fulfill our pledge to aid free and independent nations to maintain their freedoms, or our commitments to aid in restoring war-torn economies."

"In such an atmosphere of uncertainty, these nations might not be able to resist the encroachment of totalitarian pressures."

No Action Near

"We must not let friendly nations go by default."

The President said universal training is "vital to the national welfare." He declared: "Universal training represents the most democratic, the most economical, and the most effective method of maintaining the military strength we need."

"It is the only way that such strength can be achieved without imposing a ruinous burden on our economy through the maintenance of a large standing armed force."

A report by a Presidential commission recommending a universal training law has been forwarded to Congress, but no action is expected at this session.

Job For Schools

The President also took occasion to cite what he long has contended is the need for higher salaries in the government service to attract "the kind of executives required to manage its vital activities."

And he suggested a program for "the systematic training" of civilian employees once they have entered the public service, both "on the job and on the campus."

He added that the nation's schools must "train future leaders in all fields to understand and concern themselves with the expanded role of government, and—equally important—to see the need for effective administration of the government's business in the public interest."

Anybody's Guess On Penal Code's Future

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—It was anybody's guess today on whether the House would vote finally on legislation streamlining the commonwealth's criminal laws, including a provision boosting the maximum fine for gambling convictions from $500 to $1,000.

Opposing viewpoints within the Republican leadership left open the question of action on the Senate-passed measure before the legislature adjourned finally tonight.

Chairman John H. McKinney (R.-Venango) of the House Judiciary committee contended action of the House last night in tabling the bill "definitely kills it for this session."

He blamed "the activities of gamblers" for the delaying action. But, on the other hand, Rep. Herbert P. Sorg (Elk) House GOP leader, said when told by a reporter of McKinney's statement: "I wouldn't be too sure of that—we all might be surprised."

Pittsburgh, June 17 (AP)—Allegheny county detectives reported that a raid in suburban Sheraden netted them three prisoners, three adding machines and numbers slips showing a $3,000-a-day business yesterday. The prisoners, Patsy A. Grossi, 32; Anthony A. Manupplie, 29, and C. E. Hollingsworth, 38, charged with operating a lottery, were held under $3,000 bond each.

'DRAFT WALLACE' MOVE LAUNCHED

Washington, June 17 (AP)—A "draft Henry Wallace for President" movement began to take shape today as the former Vice President awaited any official response to his call for a Truman-Stalin meeting in Berlin to settle Soviet-American differences.

Wallace, the most vocal critic of President Truman's foreign policy in this country, said he knew nothing of the "draft" move, which originated in California.

But in his address here last night before a cheering outdoor crowd estimated at from 8,000 to 10,500, the ousted cabinet officer said "there will be a new party" if the two major parties "insist on pursuing the present suicidal course toward war and depression."

He called on Mr. Truman to invite Premier Stalin to meet with him in Berlin to discuss economic and trade relations between the two countries as a "first step" to world peace.

Robert W. Kenny, former California attorney general, said in Los Angeles that the draft-Wallace campaign would get under way at a meeting in Fresno, Calif., July 19. Wallace will not appear, but may send a message to the gathering, Kenny said. The primary purpose, he added, will be to select a committee to name a slate of 54 candidates for a pro-Wallace California delegation to the next Democratic convention.

Fire Levels Farm Buildings Sunday

Fire of undetermined origin Sunday afternoon destroyed a barn and a hog pen on the Melvin Altland farm, south of the East Berlin-Biglerville highway, a short distance from East Berlin. The buildings were insured. There was no estimate of the loss.

The fire was discovered by the owner of the farm at about 4 o'clock and the East Berlin fire company was summoned. The buildings were beyond saving when the firemen arrived. They issued water from a well on the premises to keep the flames from spreading to the dwelling.

The barn which burned was a structure 30 by 50 feet. A wagon was burned and two hogs perished.

The farm is the former Curtis Detrick property. Mr. Altland purchased it last spring from Harry Laughman.

Women Drunkards On Decrease Since Grandma's Day In US

New Haven, Conn., June 17 (AP)—There were more women drunkards in grandma's day than there are today, according to Professor E. M. Jellinek, a Yale physiologist who has been looking into the problem.

What's more, he says, although more people are drinking, they don't drink much, if any, more than before.

Prof. Jellinek's conclusions, appearing in an article in the current issue of the quarterly journal on studies in alcohol, were made public by Yale today.

Disputing statements concerning alcoholism among women, the professor had this to say: "The female rate of chronic alcoholism was higher in 1910 (384 per 100,000) than in 1945 (242 per 100,000)."

"The drop from 1915 to the prohibition years was less in the female rate than in the male rate. On the other hand, the rise of the female rate between the last prohibition years and 1945 was only 12.6 per cent as compared with an increase of 43.6 per cent in the male rate of chronic alcoholism."

Invites Congress To Waynesboro Fete

Washington, June 17 (AP)—Wearing a false red beard, Rep. Chester H. Gross (R.-Pa.) has invited his fellow congressmen to attend the 150th anniversary of the founding of Waynesboro, Pa.

Gross said "upwards of 100,000 persons" are expected to attend the celebration scheduled for July 6 to 11.

About 200 members of the Waynesboro Whiskers club will come to Washington next Sunday to be photographed on the capitol steps and to attend a baseball doubleheader at Griffith Stadium.

Still Monday In Assembly Halls

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—It was still Monday, June 16 in the Pennsylvania general assembly.

The reason: When the House and senate found out last night they could not clean up the work of the 1947 session, a recess rather than adjournment for the day was taken. The move kept new matter from popping up.

Officially the legislature will adjourn at 8 p.m. (EST) on June 16—when that action finally is taken.

Presbyterian Synod Is Holding Sessions

Chambersburg, Pa., June 17 (AP)—Business sessions of the 66th annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania swung into action here today with 389 statewide delegates participating.

Eighteen Presbyteries, representing more than 400,000 Presbyterians in the Commonwealth, are taking part in the five-day meeting which is being held at Wilson college.

The Rev. Dr. George C. Miller, of Butler, was elected moderator of the synod last night at the opening session. Dr. Miller, who is pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, succeeds the Rev. Dr. Galus J. Slosser, a professor at the Western Theological seminary at Pittsburgh.

Cigarette Bootleg Bill Goes To Duff

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—A bill aimed at bootlegging of cigarettes in Pennsylvania in view of the state's increased tax to four cents a pack was placed on Governor James H. Duff's desk today.

The measure, passed finally by the Senate last night, would give the state police authority to make searches without warrants.

Sen. John H. Dent, the Democratic floor leader, attacked the bill as "an invasion of privacy," but was told by Sen. O. J. Tallman, the Republican floor leader that "the constitutional rights of the citizens are fully protected."

"The sole purpose," he said, "is to prevent the bootlegging of cigarettes. If we are going to be able to collect levies which we need we must make provisions to make certain that we get that revenue."

SALARY INCREASE

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—A bill was passed finally today by the General Assembly granting a 10 per cent salary increase to instructors of state teachers' colleges. The measure, which went to the governor, also mandated the present authorized salaries.

GOP TO PARADE TAX BILL GHOST IN '48 CAMPAIGN

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

Washington, June 17 (AP)—Republicans conceded today, even before Congressional voting began, that President Truman's veto had killed their House bill No. 1—the $4,000,000,000 tax slash.

But they promised its ghost will walk in the 1948 Presidential campaign.

While GOP leaders fired verbal torpedoes at the President, the House set a showdown for early afternoon on whether to uphold or override the veto. A two-thirds vote is required in both House and Senate to override.

Truman-backing Democrats, although in the minority since Republicans took control of Congress in January, claimed victory in the House, with probably a dozen votes to spare.

No Hope In Senate

The compromise version passed the House by a vote of 220 to 99 on June 2, but administration supporters were counting on a larger attendance today to narrow the margin. If the veto is upheld there, the Senate will not vote. Otherwise, the Senate test is set for tomorrow.

But Republican leaders acknowledge that they have no hope of bettering the less-than-two-thirds 46 to 23 vote chalked up there June 3. Senator Taft (R-Ohio), co-author of the labor bill now awaiting action by the President, contended in a statement that the tax bill veto "violates the spirit of the constitution."

"Congress should always have the power of the purse strings," the Ohio Republican declared.

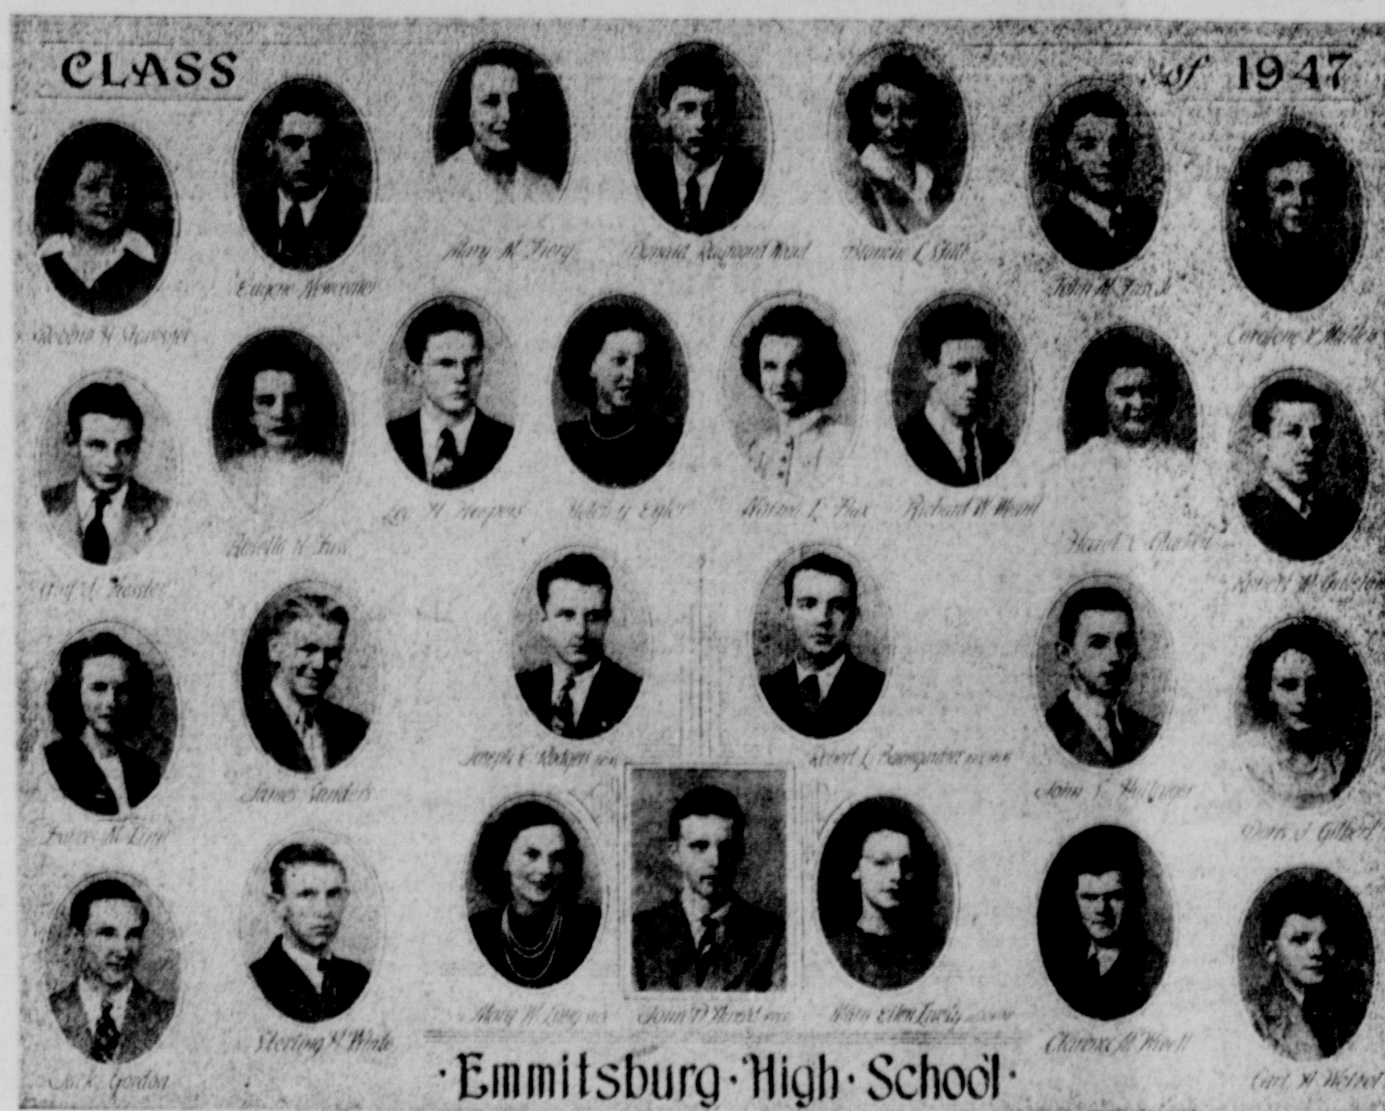

Charge "Politics"

While the vote probably ended any chance of tax reduction in 1947, the pattern for 1948 political battling was set by Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican national committee.

"Mr. Truman," Reece said, "has committed his administration to continued support of the 'tax and spend and spend and elect' philosophy of the now-discredited New Deal. This philosophy was repudiated by the American people last November, and I am confident it will be repudiated again and even more emphatically in 1948."

Generally, the Republicans contended the administration wants to put off tax reduction until next year—for political purposes.

hearing have disproved that we are decadent. When our sacred rights have been threatened, the people have risen and made this government function.

"The dictators have said and are saying that there is no God, and that the Bible is but folklore. When Communism appears, however, the people remember their teachings, and their religious culture and their great heritages, and they will again rise up to stamp out the doctrines which have no sovereign dignity."

Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster led the parade from the Meade school on a motorcycle, followed by the grand marshal, Borough Council President Ray M. Hoffman, and a color guard composed of veterans of the Spanish-American and later wars. Behind this color guard was Gettysburg's own Blue and Gray band, heading the two military units, Troop C of the old State Guard, now deactivated, and Troop A of the 104th Cavalry, the new National Guard unit here.

Massed Colors
Captain C. Arthur Brame led the State Guard troop in their last public appearance as a guard unit, and Captain Robert L. Scott headed Troop A. Massed colors of numerous Gettysburg organizations were carried behind the drum corps of the Albert J. Lentz Post of the American Legion, and the colors and a contingent from the Dorsey-Stanton post also marched with this section of the parade.

The Boy Scout color guard, Boy Scout drum corps and marching units of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts made up the balance of the parade. As the various units rounded the square, they took their places, Troop A and Troop C to the right and left of the hotel balcony, and the colors of the various organizations lined up facing the hotel.

Stand Retreat
Troop C stood retreat while three of its members lowered the flag from the staff in the square, and Master Sgt. William L. Baldwin, chief trumpeter, Pennsylvania Brigade, Sons of Union Veterans Reserve, sounded "To The Colors."

Judge W. C. Sheely, who was master of ceremonies, opened the program from the balcony, and the Rev. Floyd A. Carroll, pastor of the Methodist church, gave the invocation.

"Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, who didst lead our fathers to these shores that they might lay here the foundation of civil and religious liberty, we give Thee thanks for the glorious heritage we have received from them, and which is symbolized in the stars and stripes of our flag," he prayed. "We thank Thee for those who through the years have striven to maintain those ideals untarnished and that faith unshaken; for the first President and those who with him fashioned our government; for all who, in commonwealth and state, in school and church, in places of business and in homes, have sought to serve and preserve the nation's soul, and to make us as a nation an instrument of Thy service. Make us true to the best in our past, give us the courage and grace to meet the demands of today, that our country shall ever be, and our flag shall ever symbolize, the home of justice, liberty and true brotherhood."

Pageant of Flags
"This is truly a community affair," Judge Sheely declared. "The Elks Lillah Gault, of Tennessee, Miss Jeanette Brotherton, of near St. Anthony's had as her guests over the week-end, Miss Lucy King and Miss Helen Gardner.

Miss Mary J. Shuff, of Frederick, spent the week-end at the home of her father, M. F. Shuff, Sr.

Visitors Sunday at the home of M. E. Shuff, Sr., were Miss Edith Gardner, of Frederick, and Miss asked all the organizations of Gettysburg to join with them in the observance of Flag Day." He then introduced Attorney Richard A. Brown, who read the Elks flag ritual and history of the flags of this country, as Boy Scouts presented these flags over the balcony railing, Cabot's flag, first planted on Labrador; the Union of King's Colors; the Pine Tree flag, the Snake flag, the "Congress" colors; the first "Stars and Stripes" and the flag of Betsy Ross, the flag of 15 stars carried in the War of 1812, which inspired Francis Scott Key to write the National Anthem, and the present flag.

"Of all the flags of history, the American flag is the oldest," Attorney Brown declared.

The assembly joined then with Kenneth Cole, Boy Scout, and Barbara Weishaar, Girl Scout, in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Judge Rupp's address followed, and W. Preston Hull, exalted ruler of the Elks, presented the Memorial flag to John Myers, commander of Dorsey-Stanton post.

"We are proud of our newly-organized American Legion post, and the fact that it has acquired a new home," Mr. Hull said. "May this flag ever stimulate you to your full duty and to the preservation of all that it represents."

Proud of Heritage
"Since before the Revolution, Adams county has had a military organization," Judge Sheely declared, in a prelude to the transfer of the State Guard flag to the National Guard. "Adams county has been justly proud of its military heritage. We were justly proud of our National Guard, which was inducted into service at the beginning of World War II. It was then that the Pennsylvania State Guard was organized. Adams county has had one of the most outstanding records of any unit in that State Guard. Its troop won more honors than any other troop in the state. On behalf of all of Adams county, I want to thank you. We appreciate your services. You did honor to Adams county."

The two troops lined up facing each other and stood at attention, and the color guard of Troop C advanced the colors, presented to them through contributions made by Adams countyans, to Troop A. Captain Brame made a short presentation speech, and the colors were accepted by Captain Scott and turned over to the color guard of Troop A.

Expresses Thanks
Amidst the applause of the crowd, Troop C marched from the square to Carlisle street, and Troop A, led by the American Legion drum corps, marched around the square to Baltimore street. "The God of Jacob is with us yet," the Rev. Carroll declared, in pronouncing the benediction, and the ceremonies ended as the Blue and Gray band played the Star Spangled Banner.

George L. Bushman, chairman of the Elks Flag Day committee and the joint committee of local organizations, today expressed his thanks and appreciation to all those who participated in the program.

"I want to express my personal thanks and those of the committee to all those who participated in any way in our observance of Flag Day Monday evening. We feel that it was one of the nicest programs we have held here in years and its success is due to the many individuals and organizations who gave of their time and effort."

ASKS NEW TRIAL FOR PAIR FOUND GUILTY IN COURT

Philadelphia, June 17 (AP)—Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, demanding a new trial for Donald and Miller Johnson, declared the two convicted sons of a former federal judge "did not receive a fair and impartial trial."

The two Johnsons, together with Attorney Jacob Memolo and beer salesman Jacob Greenes, were convicted of conspiracy charges in connection with receivership proceedings of the Williamsport Wire Rope company.

At the same time, Albert W. Johnson, who served 20 years on the bench of the middle district of Pennsylvania, was acquitted of the charges, together with his son, Albert Jr.

Asks New Trial or Discharge
Margiotti, former attorney general of Pennsylvania, demanded in the third U. S. Circuit court of appeals yesterday either that the two sons be given a new trial, or that they be discharged.

The four convicted each were sentenced to two years imprisonment and fined $10,000.

He declared that Judge James Alger Fee, Oregon federal judge who presided specially in the proceedings, "erred in limiting cross-examination of many witnesses and in refusing to call back other witnesses for cross-examination."

Unfair Trial
"I agree," added Margiotti, "that Judge Fee has the right to make the rules in his own court, but the whole procedure deprived my clients of a fair and impartial trial."

In addition, he went on, Judge Fee's statement to the jury that "certain overt acts had been proved by the government" was highly prejudicial and improper.

Said Margiotti: "Only the jury has a right to decide whether overt acts have been proved to have been committed."

"There was less evidence introduced against Miller Johnson than against Albert, Jr., but yet Miller was convicted and his brother acquitted."

Claims Immunity
Later, Memolo, acting as his own counsel, said he was entitled to immunity from prosecution as he was compelled to produce records involving over 300 transactions.

Some of these records, Memolo added, were used against him at the grand jury proceedings and at the trial.

M. H. Goldscheim, U. S. Attorney who acted as prosecutor, related testimony in the trial and contended a conspiracy did exist.

The court directed counsel for both sides to file briefs before it would reach a decision.

SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE IS NAMED

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—Judge John S. Pine, of the Luzerne county common pleas court, was appointed today as judge of the state superior court.

The Senate unanimously confirmed Judge Pine for the post shortly after Governor James H. Duff submitted his name as the successor to President Judge Thomas J. Baldrige, who resigned February 18, effective March 1.

Upon Judge Baldrige's retirement, Judge Chester H. Rhodes was elevated to the post of president judge of that appellate court, the first Democrat to hold that position since the court was founded in 1895.

Judge Pine, who is 54, has been prominent in Republican politics in Luzerne county and Pennsylvania for many years.

Judge Baldrige, 74, retired after 19 years service in the superior court. His term would have expired in 1950.

or citizenship also brought a diversity of answers from the 50 schoolmen present.

A good many held that report cards should be considered of little importance, and that teachers should visit the parents, and talk over with them the skills and behavior of pupils on a personal basis.

"Just what good does it do to turn out the most detailed report in the world if the parent never gets to see the card?" asked one educator who favored home visits by teachers. "The boy or girl who gets the lowest marks and who is the one that we want most to report to the parent about generally signs the card himself and never lets the folks at home see it."

Need Clerical Help

Most were agreed that the best thing would be personal letters—but all were agreed on one thing, that the schools need more clerical help. A business concern, they pointed out, as large as the average high school would have a dozen or more clerks and stenographers. At the average high school one clerk-typist struggles with the whole mass of details. "We could send out three or four hundred letters every year, or twice a year or even oftener," one educator said, "if we had the clerks to type them out. In our school we have been trying to get out a letter every year for the parents of the youngsters. The teachers write out the letters in long hand and our commercial department types them, but even at that it is a long drawn out job."

Monday evening Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, praised the teachers at a dinner meeting and this morning the schoolmen were discussing health instruction in the schools, including physical education in the elementary schools and athletics.

PLANES AND PASSENGERS ARE INSURED

JAMES MARLOW
 Washington (AP)—What about air crash victims? Do the big commercial airlines insure their passengers against injury or death? Yes. They insure their passengers and their planes and carry insurance against damage done by the planes to property or the public.

How much insurance on passengers? Probably an average of $30,000 per passenger.

This doesn't mean an injured person, or his relatives if he's killed, can collect that much or that little. In one case a settlement might be reached out of court with an insurance company. In another a victim or his survivors might sue for far more than the insurance company was willing to settle for out of court.

Settlements Vary
 The information here comes from government officials and representatives of insurance companies and airlines. At the office of one big airline, which has had two recent big crashes, this was told:

"The airline, being insured, didn't have to do anything. But the insurance company did."

It went around to the survivors of the crash victims and paid them, without any court action, about $15,000 for each passenger killed.

One insurance company representative said his firm never settles out of court but always lets a judge decide what damages, if any, should be paid.

Passenger Mile Rate
 This statement was brushed aside by other officials. They pointed out: Always forcing survivors to sue isn't smart. Court suits cost money. If an insurance company could save money by settling out of court, it would.

How much does it cost an airline to insure its passengers? That varies. It would be something like this: Say an airline takes out $500,000 insurance on each passenger at the rate of $0.0015 per passenger mile. The plane carries 50 passengers 250 miles. That's 12,500 passenger miles.

So, at a cost of $0.0015 a passenger mile, the cost of the insurance to the airline for that 250 mile trip with 50 passengers would be $18.75.

Plane Insurance Varies
 For how much do the airlines insure their planes? That, too, varies.

The insurance company representative mentioned above said an airline would pay per year in insurance about 3 to 4 per cent of the plane's value. So at 4 per cent on a new $500,000 plane, an airline would have to pay an insurance company $20,000 a year.

Suppose a $500,000 plane, carrying 50 passengers, crashed and was destroyed, killing all passengers.

Suppose, too, that the insurance company was able to settle with the survivors of the crash victims at $10,000 for each of the 50 passengers.

Rates Come Down
 That would be $500,000 paid out in passenger insurance, plus $500,000 for the destroyed plane. Total cost to the insurance company: $1,000,000.

In spite of the many recent crashes, a government official said, insurance rates on passengers have come down in the past year.

He gave this reason: The increased number of passenger miles flown.

Last year, for instance, when 75 passengers were killed, the passenger miles flown totaled 6,046,000,000.

In 1945, there were 76 passengers killed and only 3,555,000,000 passenger miles flown.

Hunting License Boost Rejected

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—Hunting licenses will still cost $2.10 in Pennsylvania.

The house last night rejected a plan to increase the licenses from $2.10 to $2.60.

The action was taken in rejecting a house-senate conference report, which contained the increase.

"There is no excuse for increasing the fees," Rep. Edwin Tompkins (R-Cameron) said. "It just gives the Game Commission money to play around with."

Chairman Henry W. Elder (R-Lycoming), of the House Game and Forests Committee, sought support unsuccessfully for the measure.

"I think the commission has done a good job," he said.

The house action also left unchanged the present $25 license fee for non-resident hunters good both for big and small game. The defeated bill would have set up three classes of licenses for out-of-state hunters.

RESTORE CIVIL SERVICE

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—A wartime law suspending state civil service would be repealed under a measure sent to Gov. James H. Duff today. Approval finally by the Senate, the measure would continue provisional appointments and promotions made during World War II to state civil service jobs until new examinations are held to fill them.

Pittsburgh, June 17 (AP)—Injured 48 hours before in an auto crash, Mrs. Jennie Casey, 62, of Greentree, died in St. Francis hospital. Her skull was fractured when the car hit a culvert.

Chapter 25

Rush Henry took a taxi to the airport and by 4:30 he was in Forge City. Pappy Daley telephoned his hotel to say that he had the list of 1906 Harvard graduates. One of them, he said, hailed from Forge City—an attorney named King S. Wellwood.

Rush walked to the dressing table and poured a drink from a bottle of rye that someone had placed there, Merwin, he supposed. Then he walked to the closet to check through his clothes. He was half in the closet peering at the hangers when a voice shattered the stillness of the room.

"Okay, I see you. Put em up—high!"

Rush turned slowly, disgust heavy on his face.

"Put the gun away, Merwin. It's only me."

Merwin stepped into the room closing the door behind him.

"Gosh, boss. I'm sorry. I thought you was in Chicago and Twist, he told me to keep this place clean. I didn't know it was you."

"It's okay, Merwin." He looked thoughtfully through it at the fading daylight filtering through the window. Then he went to the phone and called Matt Pedrick.

"I want to hire me a lawyer, Matt. I want a brand new lawyer, just out of law school."

"Try a young fellow named Curran. You'll find him in the book. His office is in the Merchants' Building. He's as new as they come."

"Thanks, Matt. I'll tell you about it later. I want to get onto him."

Ten minutes later Rush caught young Mr. Curran looking his door and found little difficulty in persuading him to reopen his office. The interior looked as though he could stand a paying client or two. Rush put his business before him with only a few sentences of explanation.

"It's very important to me and to the good health of several other people to know the names of everybody who keeps King S. Wellwood on an annual retainer."

Rush felt that X, if he were a client of Wellwood's would be a permanent one and that X would never trust a lawyer with whom he had had no previous dealings.

"All right," said Curran reluctantly. "I can give you a fairly complete list right away. I was something of a protégé of his summers in I graduated I worked summers in his office preparing papers and that kind of thing."

It was a long list. Mr. King S. Wellwood had a profitable clientele. It seemed a respectable one, too. So respectable that Rush didn't recognize a name on it. A few were familiar, their names being part of well known firm names in the city, but not a one had even touched the fringes of his path through Forge City.

Mat Pedrick had a party that night. Rush and Gay arrived before the motley crew of other guests. They sat on a low divan and Pedrick sat astraddle a straight back chair his arms folded on its back.

"Well, what do I know that you want to know?" he asked.

"This is pretty confidential, Matt, so I won't tell you why I want to know. You'll learn soon enough. I just want to know everything there is to know about a lawyer named King Wellwood," said Rush.

"Wellwood?" asked Pedrick. "What on earth has King got to do with anything you're interested in?"

"That's just it, Matt. I can't tell you right now. I want some background on him."

"That's easy enough. Harvard Law in the early 1900's, back to practice in his father's firm. Rich. Married. No children. His father died in the twenties and he took in a young partner, a guy named Bell. He's kind of a drone—"

"Okay, Matt. Let it slide for now. I'll explain after I'm sure."

Matt shrugged his shoulders philosophically. At that moment a ring on the doorbell brought him on his feet and he opened the door to admit Kit English. Her arms were loaded with packages which she deposited on a table in the kitchen.

Then the other guests began to arrive, and from then on it was a noisy bedlam. Kit English surprised Rush by asking him to take her out on a broad balcony, about midnight.

"I want to talk to you in private and just as soon as possible. It's very important," she explained.

"This is quite private," suggested Rush, eyeing the porch they were on.

"No, somebody might come out here any minute. It has to be absolutely private."

"What would you suggest?" asked Rush.

"Could I possibly come to your room tonight?"

Rush considered. "Yes, you can go up there and wait for me if you wish. It may be some time. I'll give you my key and you can wait if you want to."

"Oh, thank you." She breathed another deep sigh. "That's a relief. I was afraid you'd put me off and it is so desperately important that I see you tonight."

Chapter 26

Rush opened the door to the living room and they stepped back into the heat and smoke and noise. He found Gay in the kitchen and put his arms around her untangling her apron as he pulled her toward him.

He turned her toward the door.

"We are blowing this fly trap," he said. "I've had a big day and I need sleep."

Rush made his need for rest stand up as an excuse and he quickly left Gay's apartment. His watch gave him two-ten as he walked down the sidewalk toward his parked car. Fifteen minutes later he was outside the door of his room in the hotel. Having given his key to Kit he tried the door with his hand. The knob turned and the door swung away from him into the room. The light was on. He pushed the door away from him and stood just outside the door looking in. As the door swung open it revealed Kit.

"Well, what gives? I'm pretty sure it's not my manly figure that has dragged you up here," he said, entering.

Kit sat up on the bed. "No. I came up here to offer you fifteen thousand dollars to get out of town."

"Where did you ever get hold of fifteen thousand dollars and why do you want me out of town?" asked Rush.

"It isn't my fifteen thousand dollars," she said. She shut her eyes and squeezed the lids tightly together for a moment. "Oh, I'm doing this all wrong. I'm so mixed up I don't know what to do."

Rush looked at her thoughtfully.

"Look," he said finally. "You don't need to figure out an act to put on. Just tell me what happened. I'll figure it out for myself."

Kit opened her eyes and looked at him.

"Maybe that'd be best. This evening before I started for Matt's I got a phone call. It was a man with a kind of muffled voice. He said he wanted me to run an errand for him. I was going to hang up when he said there was five thousand dollars in it for me if I did it right. I listened then—"

She broke off then and looked down at her hand on Rush's.

"I don't suppose I can explain what five thousand dollars would mean to me. I could get away from this town. I could travel a little. I could find a place I liked and live there. I hate this town!" Her voice rose and fell in what was almost a sob.

"What about Matt?" asked Rush.

"Oh, Matt's all right. I like him very much. But he has too much fun here. He'd never leave Forge City. But then it has always been nice to him. I was born on the wrong side of the tracks. I can never go to all the homes Matt does. He could never marry me without losing his friends out in Country Club Place. I'd hate that, too, just like I hate the town. My dad drove a garbage wagon. No one here will ever forget that!"

"Okay. Now I know why you want five grand. How were you supposed to earn it?"

"By getting you to leave town. I was to offer you fifteen thousand. Then if you accepted I'd get twenty thousand through the mail tomorrow and I was to keep five thousand."

"And if I refuse?"

Kit hesitated.

"I can answer that, I think," said Rush. "If I refuse you were to tell me that I wouldn't last twenty-four hours. That I'd be taken care of for good."

Kit nodded, her eyes lowered, looking down at nothing.

"I think you'd better tell them I refuse," said Rush.

Kit's head jerked up. Her eyes were wide staring into his.

"Oh, but you can't."

"I'm afraid I can," said Rush.

He stood up and walked to the window. Kit was off the bed in a flash. She came to stand directly in front of him before the window. She moved very close.

"Look at me, Rush," she said and her voice was husky with emotion. Rush looked directly into her eyes. "I'll up the offer," she said. "Only leave town. I'll go wherever you go and stay as long as you like." Her breath came quicker.

"Her hands moved around him and pulled him to her. An unfamiliar pulse throbbed in Rush's temple—his hands tightened on her shoulders, and he took one stumbling step with her away from the window then slowly he relaxed his hold on her shoulders, slower still his hands dropped behind his back and grasped hers. He pulled her arms from around his back and stepped away from her."

"No, Kit," he said. "No. It won't go down. I can't swallow it."

She looked up at him through eyes in which tears brimmed to overflowing.

"You mean you don't believe me?"

"It doesn't matter whether I believe you or not. I don't know what I believe. It's my pride that won't go down. I can't swallow it no matter how hard I try. I'm afraid you'll have to hunt your five grand somewhere else."

Kit stared at him unbelievably for a long moment. Then turned blindly and stumbled to the bed falling on her face on the cover. Her shoulders shook in spasms of sobbing that was almost unbearable because it was totally silent.

Rush lit a cigarette. He sat in the chair and waited. Minutes passed and the figure on the bed became still. Then abruptly she sat up, got to her feet and walked to the dressing table. She opened her purse and did feminine things to her face. Then she picked up her purse and turned around to face

PA. LABOR BILLS SENT TO DUFF

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—Administration strike-control legislation, vigorously opposed by both AFL and CIO union leaders, reached Governor James H. Duff today after final legislative approval in the closing hours of the 1947 session.

Topped by measures to outlaw strikes by public employees, deny jobless benefits to strikers and require compulsory arbitration of public utility disputes the program went to the executive labeled "pro-public" by Republican leaders.

In an unexpected move, final passage also was given to another bill making secondary boycotts and jurisdictional disputes unfair labor practices, sending that measure also to the executive.

That was all that was left of an extensive program of labor legislation brought out by the Senate labor committee several weeks ago without administration support. The House dropped all other Senate labor bills.

"It'll work the way it is," commented Weldon B. Heyburn (R-Delaware), sponsor of the original bill, after dropping a move to send the measure to conference. "There's no use sitting up (in conference) all night when it is okay now."

The labor legislation came in for new criticism from the Democratic minority and a scattering of Republican lawmakers in the lower branch.

Rush. Her eyes looked at him with no trace of rancor, rather with something that almost approached sadness.

"Well," she said. "I tried. It was a good try, too."

"Yes, Kit," said Rush. "It was a good try."

She walked to the door, opened it, and closed it behind her without a word.

Vandergrift Tops Middle Atlantic

(By The Associated Press)

Winning their lone game while the Oil City Refiners were splitting a doubleheader, the Vandergrift Pioneers climbed into first place in the Middle Atlantic Baseball league last night. The Pioneers won their second in a row from the Johnstown Johnnies by a score of 9-1.

Oil City ran roughshod over the Erie Sailors in their first, 9-2, in which Paul Wright doled out only three singles to the Tars. But in the second game, which went 10 innings, Erie poled in five runs in the ninth to tie the score at 5-5, then went on to win the next game.

Erie's Pavlick hit a homer in each game, his second one being the im-

Walter Rothensies Defendant In Suit

Walter J. Rothensies, of York county, former collector of internal revenue with headquarters in Philadelphia, was named defendant in a $30,000 civil action filed in federal court at Scranton Saturday.

Hannah May Powell, New Jersey, plaintiff in the action, alleges that Rothensies, as collector of internal revenue, confiscated the property of the La-Nu Distributing company, Philadelphia, of which she was the head, in July, 1941, without due process of the law. She also alleges that Rothensies sold the corporate assets and that she never has been reimbursed by "any government agency."

Attorney Frank Slatery, Jr., of Wilkes-Barre, and the law firm of Ramey and McKelvey, New York, filed the papers.

Youngstown won its second in a row from Niagara Falls 3-1.

NEW WARNING ON GAS SHORTAGE

Pittsburgh, June 17 (AP)—Industrial plants using natural gas for fuel today faced a grim warning from gas companies that they may have new shutdowns this winter because of another fuel shortage crisis.

A spokesman for the gas firms declared the shortage will be nearly as acute as it was last winter when several hundred plants were shut down for days at a time, making more than 50,000 workers idle.

Scores of industrial plants are going ahead with programs for installation of oil-burning equipment despite doubt expressed by oil men about future deliveries.

Largest of the changeovers was undertaken by Allegheny-Ludlum Steel corporation, whose spokesman said the switch-over to use of fuel oil and propane (a high volatile gasoline that can be gasified and used with natural gas or separately) would cost "in excess of $1,000,000."

The company said its decision to change to oil was made after gas shortages last winter resulted in the loss of 47,000 man days of production and 25,000 tons of electrical steel.

Pittsburgh, June 17 (AP)—Armed holdups are becoming routine at the Northside office of the Western Union. They've had five in the last five months.

Clerk Grace Harman said the latest one to drop in was a hatless, red-haired young man with sideburns who made her open the safe and then dashed out with an undetermined amount of cash.

The robbers who visited the office the previous four times are now in prison.

Birthday Dinner Held On Sunday

A birthday dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Bigham, Orrtanna R. 1, in honor of Mrs. Bigham's brother-in-law, Ray Miller.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Bigham, Miss Elizabeth Bigham, Mrs. Lester Fulton and daughter, Anna, and son, Robert, Orrtanna; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Miller and sons, Donald and John, and daughter, Evelyn, Newville; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shindeldecker, Mummaburg; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bushman, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cilek and sons, James, Ernest and John, Taneytown.

Two Senators Join Worley On Pay Bill

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—Members of the general assembly today voted themselves $100 monthly expenses between sessions of the legislature. The bill carrying it went to Governor James H. Duff.

Three of the 208 members of the House and Senate voted against the expense allowance, effective June 15. Those opposed were Rep. Francis Worley (R-Adams) and Senators Weldon B. Heyburn (R-Delaware) and George M. Wade (R-Cumberland).

Each legislator now is paid $3,000 each two years, and weekly mileage of five cents while the legislature is in session.

THERE NEVER WAS A RIDE LIKE THIS!

No Car Designed Before the War Can Even Compete with the Ride You Get in a KAISER or a FRAZER

You be the judge! You have driven and ridden in a lot of cars. You know how they ride. Now, get in a KAISER or a FRAZER and compare the ride! You're in for a pleasant surprise. For all your present standards of riding quality will become obsolete before you have gone a mile! You will agree that no car designed before the war can even compete with the KAISER or the FRAZER—for there never was a ride like this! You drift over rough roads. You glide along the pavement. It's a horizontal ride—with the up and down travel removed.

It's not just a matter of spring design and shock absorbers. Power, brakes, and ease of steering, all play a part. So do superior roominess, extraordinary visibility and extra-low center of gravity—with all the weight of passengers between the wheels! But what's the use of telling you how it's done! You are interested in the ride. That can't be described. It must be experienced. So, before you buy any car, learn for yourself—compare the ride!

ASK HELP WITH WHITE LINES

"Please keep off the newly painted white lines."

That was the plea today by state police and state highway workmen to drivers on the Lincoln Highway east and west of here. A special paint truck, traveling from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, arrived at the York county line Monday and painted the new lines on one side of the three lane highway from the York county line to Gettysburg Monday. This morning they completed the other lines on the three-lane road east of here and started on the highway west of town.

A new luminous paint containing fine glass beads is being placed, state police report and at night the lines glow in the dark, both from the luminous paint and from the glass reflecting the lights of approaching cars.

Vehicles passing over the lines while the paint is wet smear tracks all over the road, and, police say, at night the luminous paint all over the highway "makes an awful mess." An officer was on duty throughout the day warning motorists to avoid the lines until they were dry. When the lines are dry markers and flags placed along the line will be removed, police said.

Two Motorists Pay Code Charge Fines

Charles F. Miller, Jr., Gettysburg R. 1, has paid a fine of $10 and costs before Justice of the Peace Howard G. Blocher, Littlestown, on a charge of failing to yield one half the highway laid by state police.

Howard L. Schaeffer, Silverdale, paid a fine of $10 and costs to Justice of the Peace William Dentler, Cashtown, on an improper pass charge laid by state police.

RELIEF PAY RISES

Relief payments to needy Adams county residents for the week ending June 13 totaled $577.90, an increase of $5.30 over the previous week, Ramsey S. Black, state treasurer, has announced. The total was $142.50 more than that of the comparable week of last year.

Earle Escapes In 15th Plane Crash

Ambler, Pa., June 17 (AP)—Former Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania said he felt "pretty good" today after stepping from his 15th airplane crash with only a minor scratch.

The former governor and diplomat with his son, Lawrence, were passengers yesterday in an amphibian plane which Earle said he anticipated buying when Pilot Donald Leas discovered the wheels were jammed in the retracted condition. Leas said he would try to land on Wings field here on the pontoons. However the flaps refused to operate and the pilot was unable to slow the plane below 70 miles an hour.

As the amphibian touched the ground it ripped the pontoons and skidded to a stop in about 100 feet from where it set down. The three occupants of the plane escaped unhurt except for the light cut on Earle's wrist. The scene of the accident was the same spot where Earle crashed in a plane Christmas Day, 1938.

Many Visitors Enjoy Flag Day Program

The parade and the Flag Day ceremonies, held under the sponsorship of the Gettysburg Lodge of Elks and a community committee Monday evening in Center Square, were probably the most colorful and moving of any similar pageantry ever seen here, in the opinion of the majority of those who saw the program.

Many persons from other parts of the country, here to visit the battlefield, and tourists passing through town, remarked upon the ceremonies and were high in their praise. "I have never seen anything like it anywhere," one visitor declared.

The program went off without a hitch, as though rehearsed. There was only one occurrence to mar an otherwise perfect program. During the ceremonies in front of the Hotel Gettysburg, a group of young persons stood to the rear of the Blue and Gray band, in northeast corner of the square, and displayed a rude and disturbing lack of respect for the flag and the participants in the ceremonies with their loud talk and laughter.

DELAY AUTO BILL

Harrisburg, June 17 (AP)—The General Assembly voted to put off for two years the effective date of Pennsylvania's financial responsibility law in automobile accidents. It went to the governor. The law, enacted in 1945 to become effective on July 1, would require all operators of motor vehicles involved in accidents causing damage of $50 or more to post a $5,000 bond or have casualty insurance of that amount to cover claims.

Thoughts On Late Sweet Corn

Home gardeners with sufficient space, commercial growers and farmers should place special emphasis on a liberal planting of late sweet corn. Here, according to food facts, is the prevailing favorite canned food of the American public. Sweet corn is easily stored by drying. And too, it provides that incomparable delicacy—the roasting ear.

Recent investigations indicate all corn demands plenty of available nitrogen as the silking period approaches and a somewhat constant supply of phosphorus throughout the growing season. Apparently corn uses little potash, yet the plants must have an available supply present in the soil to enable other nutritional processes to proceed. Of course, plenty of moisture throughout the growing season, but particularly when ears begin to form, is a "must" with sweet corn.

Merely giving corn a rich soil is not enough. There should be a legume cover crop turned under every four or five years. In addition well rotted manure is desirable, turned under deeply to increase the organic matter content of the lower soil strata. Corn roots deeply, and this habit can be utilized by the grower to bridge droughts and dry periods with continued corn growth by keeping the lower rooting levels amply balanced with moisture-holding organic matter.

In the average loam, sweet corn needs a commercial fertilizer somewhere near a 4-8-5 to a 5-10-6 mixture. Because they use a 6-8-6 mixture on cabbage, broccoli and several other above-the-ground vegetables, many growers apply the same strength to sweet corn with satisfactory results. But still, this is not enough. Sweet corn needs some additional nitrogen when growth is slow early in the season and especially when ears begin to form or about tasseling time.

One or more side dressings with nitrate of soda usually pay big dividends in more ears, better filled ears, and earlier harvested ears, all three profitable aims. To learn the plant food needs of each type of soil, gardeners should experiment with their side dressing practices and note the results.

Irrigation in dry weather is well worth while for sweet corn. If rows are formed so there is sufficient slope to carry water by the open furrow method, irrigation may be simply practiced by releasing water in a slow stream at the upper end of each row. Or on a small scale corn can be irrigated by puncturing 10-gallon milk cans or larger containers and placing them at proper distances between the rows and filling them with water at night during dry periods. And on this point it is important to remember that an actual drought is by no means necessary to reduce sweet corn yields and impair ear quality. Rainless weather for even a few days at a critical time, such as the ear-forming stage, may greatly curtail production.

Bacterial blight—Stewart's Disease—cannot be cured. It must be prevented by growing one or more of the resistant strains.

The corn ear worm can be fully controlled by the simple and inexpensive mineral oil treatment of the silks. Readers may obtain full directions by writing the editor and enclosing a 3-cent stamp for reply postage.

And by the way, there is time to make at least two more plantings—

at once and again around July 1.

Growing Celery For Winter

Within the next few days soil should be prepared for setting out celery plants by the last week in June. Of course, it is too late to sow seed for celery. This should have been done about the middle of April, as celery must have around 14 to 15 weeks to develop plants from seed. The timely task now is to plan and set out a liberal crop for all-winter requirements. Celery is a peer among healthful vegetables. It should be considered a "must" on every family menu and served daily to safeguard health from late fall until spring.

This is not an easy vegetable to grow. It demands a fertile, deeply mellow loam. Most soils require a liberal application of manure worked deeply into the loam 10 days to 2 weeks before the plants are set out. And commercial fertilizers are recommended to stimulate and hasten growth. While too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of buying plants with heavy, vigorous roots, not merely a few stringy fibers. Too, celery call for no unconsiderable labor in its planting, care and storage.

Varieties must be selected wisely. They differ not only in texture but also in food value. Some varieties are more resistant to blights than others. Some blanch with little or no special attention; others must be ridged with soil or sheltered with boards or special paper. Some are extremely tender; others coarse and fibrous.

Every gardener should grow at least a 50-foot row of the tender Giant Pascal. Plants should be ridged liberally with soil to bring out the full tenderness of this nourishing variety. Winter Queen is more dwarf-like. It is a creamy white type. Easy Blanching Green, Utah, Emperor, and White Plume are among other desirable varieties.

Manure for celery should be well rotted and pulverized. It should be worked deeply into the soil long enough before plants are set out to permit uniform incorporation. Perhaps a 6-8-6 fertilizer is near the most generally needed balance, worked into the top soil along the row a few days before transplanting time. After plants resume growth they may be side dressed two or three times with nitrate of soda.

The celery leaf tier is a small greenish worm that eats holes in the stalks and webs the leaves together. Occasionally this pest is numerous, in some regions it is seldom troublesome. Dusting infested plants with pyrethrum dust will usually keep the leaf tier under control. It is necessary to repeat the application within a half hour in order to kill the tiers which the first application has merely routed from their protecting webs. The pyrethrum should be mixed with fresh tobacco dust for this role.

At the first signs of blight—yellowish-brown spots on the older leaves—growers should spray at 10-day intervals with Bordeaux mixture. Some varieties are showing resistance to both early and late blights.

Gardeners who have any questions unanswered in their minds from past problems with celery or from lack of experience with this fine vegetable should write the editor at once for all needed information. Due to the ease with which celery is stored for all winter use, every gardener with suitable space and soils should plan to grow a liberal late crop.
